Joyce,

Thanks! I should have added what Randy compiled on this as of 2009. See attached. I'm not sure if he's updated it since then or how accurate it is.

I'm going from memory (which doesn't always work well) and I believe Arizona, Massachusetts, Alabama, and I think Wisconsin. I'll check our state Guidelines adoption list and let u know if I find more.

Robert, Joyce & Maureen,

Oregon's Randy Trox is preparing to defend the state's proposed OSDS time-of-transfer inspections rule across its designated coastal nonpoint management area. Predictably, the effort is facing strong resistance from the real estate lobby. The legislature (or subcommittee?) wants to know where else this type of program has been put in place. He thinks that Delaware and North Carolina may have similar programs. Do you know? (We know about Iowa's program already.) If you have info or names/contact info for these state programs, will you please share them with Randy (cc me)?

Thanks.
